INTRODUCTION
Public speaking is the act that full of art, or process of making effective speeches before an audience, it is an act of strategic communication (Lucas, 2007; Yin, 2005) cited in (Zou,2020: 484). English public speaking (EPS) has been a skill of paramount importance among college students (Y. Li, Gao, & Zhang, 2015; Lucas, 2013; Parvis, 2001; Zhang, Ardasheva, & Austin, 2020) which strengthens the core skills and competencies, not just in oral communication, but also in writing, listening, critical thinking, intercultural communicative competence and overall English proficiency (Lucas, 2013). The Guidelines on College English Teaching in China (version 2017) states that college English curriculum should be set to develop students' comprehensive abilities, especially cross-cultural abilities and communication competence. As like in Indonesia in college curriculum also provides and cultivates students comprehensive ability in the communication. Public speaking are served in curriculum of English teaching in college.

As English language teacher we should provide our students to be able to communicate well. Communication can be conveyed through spoken or written. The realization of communication can be formed of written or spoken text. Creating a text means generating meanings. Meanings are generated not only through what speakers say to each other but also through what they do with words they use to satisfy the needs of their environment (Ghasani,2017:149). As supported Hymes’s idea in Swain (1980) and Celce-murcia (2007) cited in Fitriati (2020:33) communicative competence refers to ability to use English language correctly, appropriate to situation and express suitable behaviour in cultural context of communication. By using communicative competence it can reveal appropriate communication that arise the meaning.
One of the types of meanings that highlighted in communicative competence was interpersonal meanings which focused on the ways in which the speakers act upon one another through language. Students have to know interpersonal meanings as it will help them to express their attitudes or feelings to others. How they deliver the text to the receivers. Students must know that for some reasons, meanings are also influenced by context. Certain grammatical structures and words do not always make the same meanings. The same words can have a different communicative function in a different situation. The words will arise the new perception apart from the real meaning.

Furthermore, the choice of words or dictions also contributes to create a good text. The combination of words that has been adjusted with the context is the crucial thing of successful text. The diction enables the speaker or writer to accurately realize the message he or she intends to convey through their texts. Once the speaker or the writer fails to construct the diction, the message will be ambiguous or confusing to be read or understood. Then the message cannot be received properly for the receivers.

One of the examples of text that is can be conducted both written and spoken is speech. Speech is one of the examples of public speaking. It is performed to get attraction of the listener. Even more speech is conveying the message to the listener. Speech tends to persuade the listeners mind in agreeing the speaker’s arguments. Basically, in doing speech, speaker develops an argument in support of a position on a topic (Sellnow, 2005) cited on (Ghasani,2017:150). Therefore speech must be supported with style of Rhetoric. It is a way to persuade and strengthen the particular information that wants to be shown to the reader or hearer by using language style.

The use of rhetoric is signed by hyperbole, alliteration, metaphor, repetition, irony and metonymies. In textual analysis, the author expresses the things that would be stressed to the public, usually in form of graphic, pictures, raster or table to support or hidden another part to be shown. The author is not merely conveying the main information, but it shows the metaphor to ornament the text. It used as the main thought to support the particular idea to the public (Alex Sobur, 2006: 119) cited in (Rohmah:2018).

Speech is an autonomous way to train speaking ability. Thornbury (2005) cited on Lutviana (2016:145) stated that “at there are six criteria for autonomous speaking task, those are productivity, purposefulness, interactivity, challenge, safety, and authenticity. As a challenge, it is appropriate if speech is applied in curriculum . By setting speech in curriculum it can be conducted based on the the right time and condition realated to learning process.

This study conducted the analysis The speech that was Recently in IAIN Kudus held online english. There were 7 of participants joining the speech contest. As a adjudicator, the writer tend to analyse the speech deeper. The speech text will be analysed based on the structure of the text and rhetorical analysis from the first winner and runner up. So in this paper the writer will give the example of analytical of speech regarding to the structure of the text and retorical language found in the speech text.

METHOD

The method of this study used descriptive qualitative method to analyse the data. Litosseliti (2010:52) citen in Ghasani (2016: 147) stated that qualitative research concerned with structures and patterns, and how something is. This qualitative approach elaborates both structure and pattern of analysis without considering how many particular characteristics or items. While descriptive research includes survey and fact-finding enquiries of different kinds (Kothari 2004: 3). The major purpose of descriptive research is a description of the state of affairs as it exists at present. Thus the descriptive was applicable to describe the qualitative approach. Whereas the researcher must be noticed that the main characteristic of this method is the researcher has no control over the variable and data.
In analysing the data, the writer read the text and analyse the structures of the text. The speech will be obtain of stucture of organization. The organized speeches serves two important functions. First, organization helps improve clarity of thought in a systematic way. Second, organization increases the likelihood that the speech will be effective. Audiences are unlikely to understand disorganized speeches and even less likely to think that disorganized speakers are reliable or credible. Speeches are organized into three main parts: introduction, body, and conclusion.(Anggraini,2016:7)

After analyse the structure of the text, the writer analyzes the data using Critical Discourse Analysis theory from Van Dijk (1997). The data classified as the form of speech text which is taken by the researcher in order to reveal the macrostructure, microstructure and superstructure of the text. In this study analysed the data based on the micro structured based on Van Dijk

Organizing speeches serves two important functions. First, organization helps improve clarity of thought in a systematic way. Second, organization increases the likelihood that the speech will be effective. Audiences are unlikely to understand disorganized speeches and even less likely to think that disorganized speakers are reliable or credible. Speeches are organized into three main parts: introduction, body, and conclusion.(Anggraini,2016:7)

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

The result of the study found that the speech text conducted by DM used structur of oraganization. They are introduction, body and conclusion. Even though the text revealed supporting material. The speech will be more interesting if it is completed with supporting material. There three of supporting material; use a variety of example from real life, using definitions and explanations, use expert testimony (sellnow,2015: 79). For the first stage, using a variety of example from real life can be addressed watching, it can be used vivid aids and offer vivid description. Then followed by stage two, using definition and explanation can be constructed to use facts and data and it is addressee the thinking based on the topic. And the last, using expert testimony. In this stage constructing the speech text using supporting material will convince the addressee.

According to DeVito (2011) cited on (Anggraini 2016:4), in order to achieve an effective speech style and provide clarity and reinforcement, it is necessary to pay attention to speech technique. The speech technique in question is paying attention to alliteration, hyperbole, rhetorical questions, metaphors, metonymy, personification, and simile. In line with the description of what needs to be considered from DeVito’s theory regarding speech techniques that pay attention to alliteration, hyperbole, rhetorical questions, metaphors, metonymy, personification, and similes, Keraf calls it the term figurative language based on whether or not the meaning is direct in the form of rhetorical style and figurative language style. Keraf (1988:113) cited in (Anggraini,2016:4) The style of language which is a part of rhetoric in linguistics, it can be said that the human way of describing the technique of using language as an art, so what needs to be known is knowledge of language and good use of language. Alliteration, hyperbole, and rhetorical questions are included in the type of rhetorical style, while simile, metaphor, metonymy, and personification are included in figurative language styles.
